HERBST INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION HALL

Focus On Your World
Fort Mason Foundation and the Resource Center for the United Nations present "Focus On Your World" at the Herbst International Exhibition Hall on the Presidio's Main Post.

The exhibition was organized in 1995 by the United Nations Environment Programme to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the UN. It has been traveling around the world since then, being exhibited at national and international institutions.

"Focus On Your World" is the result of an international competition sponsored by Canon Inc. Anyone interested, regardless of age or gender, religion or nationality, whether professional or amateur, was encouraged to submit photographs reflecting the diversity of the planet and its people.

More than 44,000 submissions from 153 countries were received. The 130 finalists were selected by a jury of five: Takeyoshi Tanuma, Chairman, Japan Professional Photographers Society; Jaqueline R. Augustine, International Photographic Council; John Isaac, UN Department of Public Information; and photographers Courtney Milne and Hans W. Silvester.

The exhibition portrays "the planet, its people and their environment in a rapidly changing world," according to Charles, HRH The Prince of Wales, a patron of the competition. "Participants transformed themselves from being merely passive observers to ecologists," wrote UNEP Executive Director Elizabeth Dowdeswell, "aware of the delicate balance that pervades nature, conscious of the need to act to preserve what appears through the camera's eyes."

"People use the expression 'photography is a universal language,'" said Canon Inc. President Fujio Mitarai. "It is particularly appropriate here, since I believe these photographs will deeply touch the hearts of many people because of the great concern they show for our environment."

The Herbst International Exhibition Hall, a project of the Fort Mason Foundation, was inaugurated last August with "Ocean Planet," a traveling exhibition from the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History.

"Focus On Your World" continues the efforts of Fort Mason Foundation to advance the goals of the General Management Plan for the Presidio. These powerful photographs offer a graphic comment on environmental sustainability, international cooperation, and the richness of the planet's cultures.

Material World: A Global Family Portrait
Visitors to the Exhibition Hall are treated to an additional exhibit, presented in cooperation with the American Society of Media Photographers. "Material World: A Global Family Portrait" is based on the Sierra Club book of the same title.

These thirty photographs by Peter Menzel portray both the common humanity of the people inhabiting the Earth, and the great differences in material circumstances that make societies rich or poor. It provides a rare glimpse into how people live, their aspirations, their struggles and their achievements.

This is essentially a group portrait of the global community, documenting thirty statistically average families from around the world, outside of their homes, surrounded by their possessions.

Both exhibitions open to the public April 12 and continue through May 18. Hours are Thursdays and Fridays from 9am to 4pm, Saturdays and Sundays from 10am to 4pm. Admission is free. Docent tours are available for groups on a scheduled basis. For information about "Focus On Your World," call 561-5060. For information about "Material World," call ASMP, 777-1070

Located at the corner of Moraga and Montgomery Streets in the Presidio, the Exhibition Hall is easily accessible through the Arguello, Lombard, and Presidio Street gates. Free parking is available in the Parade Ground at the Main Post. MUNI also serves the Presidio. For information about the Herbst International Exhibition Hall, call 441-3400.

ON STAGE AROUND THE CENTER

Topographical Eden
The world premiere of poet/playwright Brighde Mullins' play about a woman searching for her mother in Las Vegas. Will she find her at the Shrine to Our Lady of Las Vegas in the Lady Luck Casino? Or will she be romantically distracted by the tattooed maiden riding her Harley into the sunset? Magic Theatre; see April 2.

Fratelli Bologna's Praise & Punishment
An evening of dangerous competitive improv with Keith Johnstone's Gorilla Theatre. Improvisers vie for audience praise or punishment—such as sticking his/her head in a bucket of water—with the least punished player winning a week's worth of "quality time" with a Gorilla companion. Bayfront Theater; see April 3.

Playwrights' Center of San Francisco hosts meetings for new and experienced playwrights. Staged Readings are members performing their original scripts, followed by audience critique. At Scene Nights, writers read scenes from works in progress in an informal circle; a discussion follows the readings. Nonmembers are welcome. Scene Night April 4; Staged Readings April 11, 18 and 25. Blue Bear Performance Hall; see April 4.

Bay Area Theatresports
presents improv at the Bayfront. BATS Tournament: teams of the Bay Area's best improvisers compete in round robin play. The new BATS Late Night Series: improv with a different theme or topic every night. Micetro: improvisers compete until only one remains. This player is the "Micetro," who wins a block of cheese. Bayfront Theater; see April 4 and 6.

West Coast Live!
SF's original live performance radio show, hosted by Sedge Thomson. Two hours of live music, conversation and play, broadcast on KALW-FM 91.7. The show is heard in the British Isles, Western and Eastern Europe via the America One audio channel. Cowell Theater; see April 5.

American Times
Westwind International Folk Ensemble presents a celebration of the history of America through dance, music, and song. It's a lively salute to the people who built America, from the whalers of New England to Chinese laborers, the Jews who escaped poverty and persecution, and the Irish fleeing famine. Westwind hails the growing Mexican American population, and the enormous contributions of African Americans to the country's artistic heritage. Cowell Theater; see April 5.

Naked*, With David Sedaris
A sellout at the last Solo Mio Festival, Sedaris returns with readings from his new book. The brilliant satirist made his debut on National Public Radio with "Santaland Diaries," recounting his hellish but true experiences as a Macy's Christmas elf trapped in a world of lecherous Santas, vomiting tots, and cruel parents. He both celebrates and skewers contemporary US culture. A Q&A session follows this reading of some favorite pieces, many too steamy for NPR. Cowell Theater; see April 6.

Eurythmeum Stuttgart
The renowned Else Klink Ensemble presents the breathtaking art of Eurythmy, interpreting music and poetry in a spectacle of color and movement. The program includes music by Mussorgsky, Shostakovich and Arensky, and scenes from St. Exupery's "The Little Prince." Sponsored by the San Francisco Waldorf School. Cowell Theater; see April 7.

Those Darn Accordions!
These six accordionists, accompanied by bass and drums, have taken their wacky and entertaining show from Alaska to Texas and from California to New York. Presented by the SF Folk Music Center as part of the Plowshares concert series. Conference Center, Landmark Building A; see April 12.

An Evening With Danny Sanderson
The singer, composer, musician and humorist in concert and conversation. Sanderson is best known as the founder of Israeli rock band Kaveret, which launched a generation of musical legends in Israel. Cowell Theater; see April 14.

When The World Was Green: A Chef's Fable
Magic Theatre is proud to present this collaboration between Sam Shepard and Joseph Chaikin. The long-awaited event comes to San Francisco following its premiere at the Atlanta Olympic Arts Festival. In the play, an Old Man is caught in the legacy of an ancient insult when he kills a man. Interviewed in prison by a young woman journalist, he is kept awake by pictures of birds, wind, and the open sea. Magic Theatre; see April 15.

Winnie The Pooh
YPT's production of this A. A. Milne classic several years ago was so popular, they've brought it back in all its glory. It's a wonderful frolic, celebrating the adventures and misadventures of Christopher Robin and Winnie, Piglet and Owl, Kanga, Roo, Eeyore and Rabbit. Young Performers Theatre; see April 19.

Filipino Youth Songfest: Himig Ng Kabataan
This annual "music of the youth" event celebrates and promotes pride in Filipino music and culture. Presented by The Fil-Am Jaycees and Filipinos for Affirmative Action. Cowell Theater; see April 27.

SF Conservatory Of Music Orchestra
Outstanding Conservatory students perform "Ein Heldenleben" by Strauss; a cello concerto; and a piece by the student winner of the Highsmith Composition Competition. The concert is conducted by Michael Morgan. Cowell Theater; see April 30.

THE RAMAYANA

The Ramayana is an archetypal tale of good and evil that still has powerful meaning throughout Asia. Especially in India and Bali, it has inspired countless retellings and a wide variety of dramatic forms. The poem tells the story of the abduction of Sita by the demon-king Rawana, her subsequent rescue by the heroic Prince Rama and an army of monkey-warriors led by the valiant Hanoman, and Rawana's eventual demise.

Two of the Bay Area's most distinguished performing arts groups join forces for the first time to present a dramatic new interpretation of the epic Indian narrative poem. This world premiere production features more than thirty dancers, forty musicians, and international guest artists.

Gamelan Sekar Jaya is hailed internationally as the finest gamelan orchestra outside of Indonesia. Abhinaya is San Jose's acclaimed professional South Indian dance company. This unique production synthesizes Balinese and Indian traditions in a dance-drama featuring spectacular dance and costumes, shimmering gamelan music, exotic percussive rhythms, lyric poetry, and song.

Enriching the collaboration are the religious, dramatic and cultural connections between the Indian and Indonesian cultures reaching back many centuries. The Hindu Ramayana and Mahabharanta epics are important in both cultures; their music, dance and dramatic traditions have similarities of form and expression.

Directed by Mythili Kumar, who is accomplished in three styles of Indian classical dance, Abhinaya of San Jose was founded in 1981. Presenting South Indian classical dance forms throughout the Bay Area, the company has produced fifteen full-length dance dramas featuring Kumar's choreography.

Gamelan Sekar Jaya has achieved international acclaim for its accomplishments in Balinese music and dance. For nearly two decades, the company has presented more than 250 Bay Area performances, toured the East Coast, Pacific Northwest, Canada and Mexico, and has performed in the prestigious Bali Arts Festival in Indonesia.

The Ramayana is presented at the Cowell Theater April 18 and 19, Friday and Saturday at 8pm. Tickets are $14 for adults, $12 for students and seniors, available through City Box Office, 392-4400. For information about Abhinaya Dance Company, call (408) 993-9231. For information about Gamelan Sekar Jaya, call (510) 237-6849.

PRAISE AND PUNISHMENT

Fratelli Bologna, best known for their infamous Weber Family Christmas, return to the stage with an exciting and dangerous competitive format called Keith Johnstone's Gorilla Theatre.

Bologna members Richard Dupell, William Hall, and John X. Heart, plus Bay Area Theatresports improv goddess Rebecca Stockley, host this weekly series with five improvisers—local actors, improvisers, comics, and directors—directing each other in scenes based on audience suggestions.

At the end of each scene, the audience gets to praise or punish the director. Punishments may have the director sticking his/her head in a bucket of water, turning his/her clothes inside out for the rest of the evening, or—the most feared of all—performing one minute of solo mime. At the end of the evening, the most praised player wins a week's worth of "quality time" with a Gorilla companion.

As founding members of Bay Area Theatresports, the Bolognas have a long tradition in local improv. They have put on dozens of original theatrical productions, including Medea, an ancient Greek travesty, in over their heads, to get to the other side..., and the Fratelli Bologna Comedy Show.

The Bolognas have also collaborated on the San Francisco Opera's production of Rossini's Otello and Merle Kessler's (aka social critic Ian Shoales) world premiere of Ubu Roi. Individually, they have appeared in various films, television shows, and live performances.

Fratelli Bologna's Praise and Punishment Show takes place in the Bayfront Theater March 13 through May 29, Thursdays at 8pm. Tickets are $10, with a $2 student and senior discount. For information, call 285-4328.

PRINTERS' FAIR

The Pacific Center for the Book Arts presents the 23rd Annual Printers' Fair. It's an opportunity for exhibitors and visitors alike to catch up on the latest in the book arts, an innovative technique, or a beautifully designed print that is literally hot off the press.

Those attending the Fair can also learn about local organizations that foster the development of the many book arts disciplines: printing, calligraphy, bookbinding, papermaking, conservation, book design, and illustration.

Exhibitors come from as far away as Chicago and Arizona to display and sell books, cards and prints, tools and artifacts, old-fashioned printing equipment, lead type, and old advertising cuts. Demonstrations include letterpress printing, paper marbling and bookbinding.

Regular Fair participants Dana Draper and Ingrid Butler Draper of Moth Marblers recently received the Designers of the Year Award from the City of Sausalito. Currently, they are working on design projects for Robert Mondavi Winery. Ingrid and Dana's decorative papers not only lend themselves to commercial design, but also are found in museum collections around the world.

Ingrid Butler

A native San Franciscan, Dana is the grandson of Dorothy Draper, world-famous for her use of brilliant colors and bold floral patterns. She did the interior decoration for San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel. Dorothy provided a strong influence on Dana's sense of artistic patterns and design.

Dana graduated from Columbia University, studied at the Art Students League in New York, and received a Master of Fine Arts degree from New York University in 1970. In addition to perfecting the fine art of marbling, Dana created accordianated books. These are continuous strips of sketches, sometimes random and unrelated, sometimes telling a story such as a Greek myth or fairy tale. He has had many gallery showings and exhibitions of his work in sculpture, marbling and photography.

Ingrid holds a BA in graphic design from the Rhode Island School of Design, where she studied with world-famous color theorist Joseph Albers. After graduation, she served a 3-year internship in Italy before beginning a 14-year career in the fashion industry.

Ingrid's sense of color and skill in design have reached a culmination through her association with Dana and the creation of Moth Marblers of Marin. For the past ten years, Ingrid has developed the tradition of marbling into a contemporary look and feel for fabrics and papers.

The Fair also features perennial favorites, including Jim Heagy with a selection from his enormous warehouse of type and printing equipment, and Gordon Sullivan showing his antique Gutenberg-style handpress. Nancy Chandler shows handmade mulberry papers from Thailand. Dominic Riley and John DeMerritt may be the only bookbinders in the world with a cable TV show, sponsored by the San Francisco Public Library.

Dan X. Solo of Solotype, world-famous for the typographic headlines that graced early issues of Rolling Stone and for the many fantastic typefaces that Solotype collected and published, presents his 600-piece rubber stamp collection.

The Pacific Center for the Book Arts is the Fair's new sponsor. The PCBA was formed in 1980 by a group of Bay Area professional book artists, book workers and educators, to foster and support the book arts disciplines and to provide a vehicle and focus for education, experimentation and communication. PCBA activities include exhibitions, lectures and workshops. Membership is open to all who are interested in the book arts.

The Fair takes place in the Conference Center April 19, Saturday from 10am to 4pm. Admission is free. For information, call 621-5744.

LANDSCAPE GARDEN SHOW

Scott Columbo 1996
garden design winner

The 1997 San Francisco Landscape Garden Show presents "Gardens Of The Silver Screen," an exhibition of garden designs named for classic and contemporary movies. My Darling Clementine recalls John Ford's famous westerns, while Enchanted April draws from Italian and English gardens. Jean Cocteau's Beauty And The Beast is honored with two creations inspired by the Beast's garden and castle. All designs were created by Bay Area gardeners.

Now in its 12th year, the San Francisco Landscape Garden Show is produced by The Friends of Recreation and Parks, and all proceeds benefit San Francisco's parks and recreation programs. This year, more than 200 exhibits showcase horticultural societies and nurseries, while educational displays offer practical gardening hints. Children can enjoy environmental activities in the discovery area, and novice or experienced gardeners should find plenty of browsing to do among the shops. Friday night's Rare Plant Auction should entice avid plant collectors of all stripes.

Free garden talks and the garden technology area educate on topics including root control, topiary art, lighting, pesticide use, pruning, fountains, and the ins and outs of caring for flowering plants ranging from roses to lilies. In addition, a workshop series teaches pruning techniques, garden remodeling, flower arranging, and container gardening. Fees range from $25 to $40.

The 1997 San Francisco Landscape Garden Show is presented in the Herbst and Festival Pavilions April 16 through 20, Wednesday through Sunday from 10am to 6pm. On Friday, doors remain open until 9pm. Tickets are $12, $10 for seniors, and children under 12 get in free. A special opening night gala takes place Tuesday, April 15, from 5 to 9pm. Tickets are $125. For information, call 750-5108.

BABRA AWARDS

The Bay Area Book Reviewers Association (BABRA) pays tribute to outstanding Northern California literary luminaries at the 16th annual BABRA Awards.

Spotlighting a lifetime of achievement, the Fred Cody Award is presented to current US poet laureate Robert Hass. Also honored are the year's best in local fiction, poetry, nonfiction and children's literature.

In 1981, a loose-knit group of Bay Area book reviewers met to give recognition to the accomplishments of local authors. This association eventually led to the creation of BABRA and the annual awards ceremony to honor outstanding Northern California literature.

At the heart of BABRA was Fred Cody, founder and proprietor of Cody's Bookstore in Berkeley. After his death in 1983, the Association created an award in his name. Previous Cody Award winners include Josephine Miles, Robert Duncan, Wright Morris, M. F. K. Fisher, Jessica Mitford, Gary Snyder, Alice Walker, William Everson, Kay Boyle, Wallace Stegner, Malcolm Margolin and Adrienne Rich .

The 16th Annual BABRA Awards celebration takes place in the Cowell Theater on Wednesday, April 9. Admission is $12. The evening opens with a reception and no-host bar at 6pm. The awards presentation ceremony begins at 7pm, followed by a dessert and coffee reception and book signing by the award-winning authors at 9pm. For information, call (510) 525-5476.

SEARCHING FOR FAMILY HISTORY

The California Genealogical Society presents "The Golden Gateway to Your Ancestry." This is the 12th Annual Family History Fair, offering a wide variety of methods, from traditional to high-tech, to search for information about your roots.

There are ethnic discussion groups for those doing research on Chinese, African American, or Jewish ancestors. The Genealogical Society's Golden Gateway booth provides experienced researchers to suggest fresh approaches to finding that elusive ancestor, helpful information on getting started, or how to solve research problems that have you baffled.

Classes are offered for family history researchers ranging from novice through advanced. A sampling from more than thirty classes taught by experts in their fields includes instruction in tracing a wide variety of heritages, both in this country and in countries of origin; locating living relatives; using cemetery, land, passenger arrival, and lesser-known Federal records; computer usage in genealogy; and publishing your family history.

Throughout both days of the Fair, vendors from across the United States are on hand with the latest genealogical products and books, including computer-related merchandise to help genealogists find and keep track of their forebears. Members from the CGS Computer Interest Group demonstrate how genealogy fits into the high-tech world of the Internet. One-hour demonstrations are scheduled presenting the latest in computer software and other computer products.

Making a rare West Coast appearance is author and professional genealogist John Colletta, Ph D, from Washington, DC, where he is a popular instructor at the National Archives and the Smithsonian.

The Family History Fair takes place in the Herbst Pavilion, the Conference Center, and Landmark Building C. The Fair is open April 25 and 26, Friday from noon to 8pm, Saturday from 9am to 5pm. Classes are held in the Conference Center and Landmark Building C; check in first at the central registration desk in the Herbst Pavilion.

Classes and all activities in Herbst Pavilion: $25 for one day, $35 for two days. Pavilion only: $10. Lower rates are available for those who preregister before April 15. For information, call 777-9936.

FORM AND FUNCTION

Earth and Air
An artist's choice of materials—fiber, wood, metal, glass, clay—and how they are molded into solid art are the subject of this new exhibit. Earth and air, materials and space, are as important as the form itself.

The seven artists featured in this exhibition concern themselves with the human figure and its relation to the earth. Thus Margaret Ford's figures are also tree limbs—made of wood and, hence, of the earth. Suspended in the air, they seek the freedom of flight. Also working with wood, Bob Brady creates compelling but quirky sculptures more firmly rooted to the earth.

The ceramic and wood works by Irv Janeiro relate to place, in this case New Mexico, Janeiro's home. Even metal or glass, though human products, come from the earth and reflect the durability and fragility of its creations. This can be seen in the work of Seattle artists Flora Mace and Joey Kirkpatrick, sculptures that give the viewer a sense of vulnerability yet stand on their own.

"Earth and Air" also features found and worked wood scraps by Terry Turrell and clay works by Ronna Neuenschwander .

Sticks
In the mezzanine, the museum brings to light the craft of carved walking sticks with a collection of staffs from around the world. The exhibit features works by North American folk artists and by tribal artists from Burma, New Guinea, Indonesia, Africa, Cambodia, and Panama's San Blas Islands. The American folk art collection was provided by Bonnie Grossman of the Ames Gallery in Berkeley.

Each stick reflects the maker's cultural and personal values. Designs include birds, lizards, insects, or snakes reflect mythological or decorative motifs of a particular place. There is hardly a subject that is not game for the carver.

Almost every culture has some form of decorative stick, most often used in ceremonies and dances. The more secular walking sticks have a long tradition, particularly as men's accessories. They therefore reflect a traditionally male aesthetic with subjects such as sports, politics, or personal icons. The study of this art form, however, is relatively new and most works are hard to trace back to a particular artist or artisan.

A Taste of Hell
by Robert Brady

In conjunction with these two exhibits, the museum offers a special Family Workshop on April 5, Sunday from 10am to Noon and 1:30 to 3:30pm. Tour the exhibits, then make your own wood sculptures at the Children's Art Center. The workshop costs $20 for the first family member and $15 for each additional member. Call ahead to reserve space.

"Earth and Air" and "Sticks" both opened at the San Francisco Craft & Folk Art Museum March 29 and run through June 1. For details, see the Galleries section. For information, call 775-0990.
